

Acknowledgements of Ana Lúcia Gazzola:

I would like to conclude this phase at IESALC by thanking: first, the IESALC team; my daily colleagues, those who have undertaken this effort with me and our colleague Sueli Pires, Academic Coordinator of this entire process. Each of the members of the IESALC team, both UNESCO staff and the others, who have worked with us, have made this a collective enterprise. I am very grateful to all of them for the everyday joys, cooperation, comradeship, and for the memories that I will take with me. Of course, Sueli deserves very special thanks for everything she accomplished.

A special thanks is due as well to all of the members of the IESALC Administrative Board; all of those who participated as advisors during these two years; to the consultants, to all of those who have contributed with their intellectual and academic efforts to projects because the result has been a production of high academic quality, very representative of the best that has been done in higher education in our region. To each of them, particularly to the project coordinators of the books, to the editors, to each one goes my very special thanks.

I wish to express my gratitude to the university network, deans and a special thanks to their presidents. To the secretaries and executive directors of these councils and networks; to the members and holders of UNESCO Chairs, and to all of the national, sub-regional, regional, and international organizations and networks, from Latin American and the Caribbean and of other regions who have worked with us and believed in our projects.

Naturally, I wish to thank the donor countries, among which I highlight the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela in the person of the Minister of Higher Education, Luis Acuña, of Vice-Minister Tibusay Hung, and the entire Ministry of Higher Education team. Thanks as well to the government of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela for its permanent support, solidarity, kindness, attention, and for the spirit with which it has received us and has supported us during these years.

I am very grateful to all of the donor countries that made possible the organization of the Regional Conference in Higher Education - CRES 2008. To the Minister of Higher Education of the Bolivarian Republic of Venezuela, to the Minister of Education of Brazil, to the Secretary of Public Education of Mexico, to the Ministry of National Education of Colombia, to CEXECI of Spain, which also contributed, and to the new Ministry of Higher Education, Science, and Innovation of Spain, all of them donors who made possible the organization of this important event. I would also like to thank the Spanish Agency of International Cooperation for Development (AECID) for the extra-budgetary resources provided to IESALC in 2007 and 2008, and for other projects that IESALC has carried out.

To my colleagues of United Nations agencies in Venezuela, and to our resident coordinator, many thanks, and to the team of the United Nations of Colombia, our colleagues as well in carrying out CRES 2008, and to all of those who have helped us. Finally, and principally, my gratitude to UNESCO and its Director General Ambassador Koïchiro Matsuura, to its Assistant Director General Marcio Barbosa, Director of Education Nicholas Burnett, to the Director of the Division of Higher Education Georges Haddad, Assistant Directors of Education Qian Tang, and Ana Luiza Machado.

To each of my colleagues at UNESCO headquarters in Paris, at the Offices of Latin America and the Caribbean, at the Centres and Institutes category 1 and category 2, to all of them, but especially to the management of UNESCO for the trust placed in me and for the support that we received during these two years, for the always respectful and solidarity-based responses to our requests and needs, and for the privilege that has been granted to me to participate in an organization such as UNESCO, with its noble principles and coherent action, that are surely very important for the world to increasingly move a bit more toward fulfilling the ideals and utopias of each of us.
